How do we capture the essence of a subject rather than saying too much? If we want the viewer of our painting to feel engaged with the work, we need to leave a little to the imagination, not describe everything in such detail that no room is left for interpretation.

Join inspirational UK artist Haidee-Jo, in her first USA workshop, to paint 'en plein air'; learning how to capture complicated scenes with simplicity and freshness. This course focuses on teaching you to see in a way that will help you to make decisions on what and how to simplify in order to say more with less, using the themes of shape and suggestion.
